Keynote Presenter: David Speechley

Though it is obvious that he no longer rides, David Speechley started out in 1973 peddling a push-bike door to door, teaching swimming and water safety. He went on to grow one of the largest swim schools in Australia, teaching over 10,000 children a week in the late 80's and early 1990's.

His initial concerns about 512 people drowning in one year in the mid -1970's and the lack of formal accreditation or "standards" in the late 1970's pushed him to become more than just a swimming teacher and so he became involved in the Life Saving movement and the broader aquatics industry. He is:

- a passionate industry advocate with involvement in lifesaving and swimming from womb to tomb and all ages in between,
- an administrator at a national and international level,
- the author of numerous published articles and a number of accreditation courses and texts,
- editor of a number of books, numerous newsletters, journals and articles,
- a course presenter at numerous aquatically related courses, conferences and conventions, both in Australia and internationally
- and currently the Australian Swimming Coaches and Teachers Association CEO
